PART 1: TWO FOUNDATIONS

Foundations of harmonious society may be two-fold:

1. Pragmatism with self-determination: principles are pragmatic, not at odds with autonomous individuals' incentives.
2. Harmony by Kantian extension: principled actions can be universalized (enacted by anyone) with the result that everyone lives in harmony.

Harmony entails, without limitation, absence of any gratuitous: pain, trauma, fatigue, manipulation as by incessant subliminal messaging, or constriction of liberty including by cognitive interference (“without free thought, there is no free will” — Cathy O’Brien in Access Denied for Reasons of National Security after Trance: Formation of America).

These two foundations encompass means and ends. Means are not sacrificed for ends, as all means are ends in the moment, and all ends are means to further ends. To neglect means, therefore, is to neglect ends. It follows that foundations of a harmonious society must encompass harmonious means, as generally construed, and harmonious ends.

Drafted principles within each overarching foundation:

1. Pragmatism

- 1(a). Societal law enables Maslow’s basic needs for everyone (without starvation or involuntary homelessness: food, water, a comfortable environment, rest, economic security, safety) and enables the balance of Maslow’s needs (intimate relation, friends, feelings of accomplishment and achieving potential) for all.

- 1(b). Societal law enables physical and mental health for all with clean air; quietness; benevolent medical attention and the absence of cognitive interference as by any non-consensual implant or frequency, including by non-consensual brain-computer interface (BCI) or remote neural monitoring (RNM) outside strictly time-limited law enforcement operations with meticulous checks and balances.
- 1(c). Individual ownership of living necessities, including food and home, reduces the probability of tyranny; conversely, “you will own nothing” would be conducive to tyrannical enslavement such as shutting off protesters’ access to food. (“You will own nothing” mirrors the World Economic Forum founder’s family business using unpaid Nazi-threatened labor in World War II. One just might consider that an inappropriate intellectual basis for a fascist forum, let alone a new world order.)
- 1(d). Individuals respond to incentives; capitalism engenders effort and innovation to satisfy each others’ needs and desires more fully or efficiently. Capitalism satisfies variegated decentralized needs and desires in ways communism or socialism, imposing central planning, does not.
- 1(e). Leaders will be sometimes tyrannical, corrupt or otherwise faulty; (i) decentralized, (ii) frequently elected and (iii) tricameral checks and balances on leadership reduces the probability of tyranny with fault tolerance for some miscreants ascending to power.
- 1(f). All designs generally can be improved and may engender harm inadvertently. Laws and customs that can be changed, with deliberation, are essential for fault tolerance.
- 1(g). Elitist families presided over centuries of contrived wars, intentional diseases and widespread suffering. Hereditary rule was empirically horrendous. An alternative: meritocracy in legitimate democracy.
- 1(h). Legitimate democracy, with verified votes, minimizes the probability of extended tyranny. The US has not had verified voting. It can be attained by posting each vote online, identified by a (non-sequential) numerical receipt handed to each voter. While thousands ensure there is no change in the online file, each voter sees one record of her vote online — how she voted next to her receipt number. In an unalterable online file, she attests to having verified it. Attestations sum to 100% of the votes. Voters may be asked to re-verify it at a few points in time. Easing this may be a tax credit for each voter’s verification (e.g., $2K with voters’ taxes raised $2K just to be so reduced).
- 1(i). Layers of governance by direct democracy, each with frequently elected overseers harboring negligible power in themselves, can preempt tyranny.
- 1(j). So can decentralized raw power — as in arms — with rigorous safety training. Where arms have been outlawed, genocide has often followed.

2. Harmony by Kantian Extension

- 2(a). Kantian harmony requires intolerance of gratuitous torture.

- 2(a)(i). It requires zero tolerance of entities and individuals who perpetrated sustained targeted individual torture.
- 2(a)(ii). It requires approximately zero willingness to torture gratuitously, including as ordered: approximately 0% failure of Milgram-type experiments.
- This may and may not be attainable for humanity, historically failing Milgram torture experiments with an approximately 60%–70% maximal failure rate and 100% basic failure rate.[3] If it is unattainable as by education, then the species is incompatible with harmonious society.
- 2(a)(iii). It may require empathic education:
- In assessing rescuers versus non-rescuers in Nazi Germany, Midlarsky and Fagen-Jones found empathic concern to have the highest single coefficient alpha (0.91).[1]
 - Dr. Sue Arrigo reported a 100% success rate in teaching a group of children to protect each other when the CIA allegedly planned for them to kill each other.[2]
- 2(b). Kantian harmony requires rule of liberty-oriented law.
- 2(b)(i). Protecting any violent criminal (including ideologically Nazi war criminals and torturers) as by secret oath or threat, as within about every branch of Masonry and Illuminati allegedly: high crime.
- 2(b)(ii). Approximately every covert agency and large “secret society” worldwide needs to be obliterated, leaving no oath to protect criminal brothers, as they have enabled targeted individual torture operations against innocent citizens, or false flag operations, violating constitutional law.

Notes:

[1] Elizabeth Midlarsky and Stephanie Fagen-Jones. (2007). Courageous rescue during the Holocaust: personal and situational correlates. Journal of Positive Psy., January, p. 8:

“Empathy was measured using the empathic concern subscale of the Interpersonal Reactivity Index (IRI, Davis, 1983). The subscale consists of seven items rated on a 5-point Likert scale, with anchors ranging from ‘does not describe me well’ to ‘describes me very well.’ Items include ‘I often have tender, concerned feelings about those who are less fortunate,’ and ‘Sometimes I don’t feel very sorry for other people when they’re having problems’ (reversed). The emphatic concern subscale of the IRI has been shown to have adequate test–retest reliability as well as convergent and discriminant validity. Coefficient alpha for the emphatic concern subscale in this study was 0.91.”

[2] Whistleblowers described the CIA’s drug and sex trafficking businesses with media control to limit disclosure (e.g., Dope Inc., Presstitutes and Cathy O’Brien’s Trance: Formation of America and Access Denied For Reasons of National Security). “From 1953, CIA Director

Allen Dulles oversaw the media network, which had decisive influence over the 25 top newspapers and wire agencies” (in Alex Constantine’s Mockingbird: The Subversion Of The Free Press By The CIA). Sharyn Bovat reported that her “grandfather told me that the mainstream media was taken over by the CIA [more thoroughly] after Watergate because there was no way in hell that would happen again.” As a CIA director allegedly said, “The CIA owns everyone of any significance in the major media.”

Supported by media control, allegedly the “company’s” (CIA’s) and associates’ business lines have included drug running; child trafficking; sex trafficking; sports wagering with programmed or covertly tortured players; false flag operations for wars of aggression; war profiteering; corporate profiteering by cheating (espionage) or regime change; and targeted individual torture operations for profitable contracts, silencing whistleblowers or Orwellian New World Order test runs (in summary, see Monarch: The New Phoenix Program).

Considering the CIA allegedly sold children into sex slavery for a mere $300 cut, the CIA’s/NSA’s collusion with pharmaceutical industry elements — as the agencies can trigger approximately any physical and psychological malady covertly (generally by frequency assault) — may come to light.

The following allegation, by an alleged CIA operative, may be unfathomable to those unfamiliar with US history, as the federal agencies allegedly joined and then replaced the drug-running mafia. Regardless, it describes an intervention with children that points to a possible solution for empathic education. You might consider it only a story, though liars may rarely recount such details:

Children vs. the CIA

An alleged policy of killing children after two years of drug running or pimping for the CIA, passing on illicit gains to so-called Cabal families as customary, was “set by the Cabal on the recommendation of an independent think tank on how to maximize Cabal profits. So even though 3 times in this meeting of about 15 people, I object to this program for various moral reasons I got nowhere.

I recommended that the CIA at least study how to assess these kids as to which were worth retaining with an eye to their moving up into the CIA later. It was a stalling maneuver on my part to try to delay the execution order. [The CIA director] would not consider it. He was going to obey this execution order without delay. The kids were to do the executions of each other.

It reminded me of the purge when I was 9, when only 3 of over a thousand of us survived the purge. I wanted to cry. I stared out the window of the 7th floor at the tops of the trees in the distance while [he] kept on talking. He complained that I was ignoring him. I wasn’t ignoring him. I was thinking about what it would take for me to throw him through the glass pane to his death.

After I figured out how I could do it, I thought about whether it would actually stop the kids from being executed by the Cabal. When, sadly, I saw by looking at the future that it would not, I gave up the plan.

At that moment, [he] turned to me and told me that I was to be one of his bodyguards that night. That was not an unusual assignment — I often did some bodyguard work for DCIs at night — usually while in their beds. Fortunately, [he] was not requiring me to do it from his bed. He just wanted me with him that night so he could get me to play a Russian Chess master. I mention that because as I was in the middle of playing [him] and winning, it occurred to me that if I could beat a competent chess master using my remote viewing skills I should be able to figure out how to outwit [the DCI] and prevent the execution order from going forward the next week.

The next day, instead of throwing [him] out of a window of the 7th floor, I threw his chess set out the window. I was accused of littering. I used the opportunity to get out of the rest of the meeting, the second part on implementing the execution order.

As I picked up the chess pieces, I was crying and imagining them to be those children. I put them in the box and then feeling rather irrationally that I had just accidentally put them in prison, I took them out and lined them up on the sidewalk as if to start a chess game. A high-ranking analyst, the equivalent of the number 2 man in the dept. happened by and we started playing a game of chess on the sidewalk.

Part way through as he was losing he said, “You seem upset. This isn’t like you. Is there anything I can do to help?”

I burst into tears and then explained the execution order. He listened patiently and then he said, “Oh, I think that I could hold that up for at least a good 6 months.” He was as good as his word. He managed to initiate “crucial” studies of the cost-benefit ratio of the plan.

Unfortunately, even his own analysts concluded that it was more cost effective to kill them all after 2 years than to have the case officers assess them as to which should not be terminated. The logic of that went something like, “If the officers have to decide which to save, they will want to save their favorites. And having decided to save the kids that they personally are screwing in their beds, they will be tempted to save some others as well. Since any one of them talking could destroy the revenue stream of the Agency, none should be excluded from this necessary measure.” That appalled me.

The only reason that the CIA could think of for saving a person was to go on screwing them in bed. I thought about that relative to my own position in the CIA. As useful as my remote viewing skills were, it was true that I, as a slave, probably would not have survived had I not regularly been in the beds of the DCIs.

I did go to Bakersfield and meet with the gang of largely 13 year olds. I did not teach them how to kill well. I taught them how to die well. I was quite honest with them. I explained to them that the CIA wanted them dead after two years on the job and intended to get them to kill their buddies.

There was only one gang in Bakersfield to speak of and I had been sent to that city because the CIA was not sure how to get a single gang to kill itself. They assumed that I would figure out how to split it in two in a divide and conquer strategy.

When I finished explaining this to these normally loud and restless youths, the recreation hall was dead silent. One of them asked me what I recommended they do.

They could see for themselves that it was easy to split them into warring factions and get them to fight each other. I told them that I recommended that they learn to die protecting each other.

“Against the whole CIA?” one girl asked anxiously.

“Why not?” I asked. “It doesn’t matter how many people you have gunning for you if you can have the satisfaction of dying to protect a friend.”

They understood that. These teenagers, that had been running drugs and pimping for the CIA, understood that they could get personal satisfaction from helping a friend.

So I taught them how to die for each other. How to put their bodies in front of another while others aimed a gun at them or swung two by fours at them.

We practiced it a couple of hours together. That was all the time I had with them.

The execution order came down about 8 months later. The CIA sent in another person into Bakersfield to divide and conquer them. He tried and then wrote a report saying that he didn’t know what I had done, but the kids had such solidarity with each other that nothing he did to divide them worked.

None of those kids died. The CIA could not get them to kill each other and by the grace of God, the police refused to arrest them. I heard later that as a group they voted to go straight and stop pimping for the CIA.

No doubt the CIA recruited other kids through mind control measures. It was only a small victory against evil but it was a victory none-the-less.

I managed to report this intervention on my part as an important research study on non-violent resistance and since the CIA had some interest in learning about the methods that could be used against them, they accepted that explanation. It was because of good skills that I managed to survive.

Not long after the execution order went into effect, there was backlash against it from the case officers in the field. Some quit.

Some refused to carry it out and some simply carried it out so ineffectively that it was like not carrying it out at all. In some cases warring gangs figured out what was going on and created truces to stop it.

But mostly, the gangs fought each other and children in the US died like they did in third world countries of [due to] the US policies of men who care for Profits, Not People (see Chomsky’s book of that title.) Children died alone of gunshot wounds in back alleys afraid to go to the hospital for fear of arrest, or worse — the torture they had suffered at the hands of the mind controllers.

Children got pregnant and had babies while they themselves were 11, 12, and 13 because the CIA had in effect forced their brothers to prostitute them to stay alive. And a whole culture of safety, of believing that a child could walk to the corner store safely, died under the CIA's villainy.

Corrupt politicians and agencies led to violence on the street and disruption of family life. America went from a society where one could leave one's house unlocked to one in which it was not safe to let your children out of one's sight. And it happened in a single generation from the start of the CIA in 1947....

Cry, my beloved country, for what has been done to you....”

- [3] Marshall Thomas, ed. (2011). Monarch: The New Phoenix Program, recommended for a preliminary view of post-World War II US history. Excerpt:

“The Milgram Experiment: A substantial proportion of people do what they are told to do, irrespective of the content of the act and without limitations of conscience, so long as they perceive that the command comes from a legitimate authority.... This is, perhaps, the most fundamental lesson of our study: ordinary people, simply doing their jobs, and without any particular hostility on their part, can become agents in a terrible destructive process. Participants were men between the ages of 20 and 50, from all educational backgrounds, ranging from an elementary school dropout to participants with doctoral degrees. The ‘teacher’ was given a 45-volt electric shock from the electro-shock generator as a sample of the shock that the ‘learner’ would supposedly receive during the experiment. The subjects believed that for each wrong answer, the learner was receiving actual shocks. In reality, there were no shocks. After the confederate was separated from the subject, the confederate set up a tape recorder integrated with the electro-shock generator, which played pre-recorded sounds for each shock level. After a number of voltage level increases, the actor started to bang on the wall that separated him from the subject. After several times banging on the wall and complaining about his heart condition, the learner gave no further responses to questions and no further complaints. At this point, many people indicated their desire to stop the experiment and check on the learner. Some test subjects paused at 135 volts and began to question the purpose of the experiment. Most continued after being assured that they would not be held responsible. A few subjects began to laugh nervously or exhibit other signs of extreme stress once they heard the screams of pain coming from the learner. If at any time the subject indicated his desire to halt the experiment, he was given a succession of verbal prods by the experimenter, in this order: 1. Please continue. 2. The experiment requires you to continue, please go on. 3. It is essential that you continue. 4. You have no choice, you must continue. If the subject still wished to stop after all four successive verbal prods, the experiment was halted.

Otherwise, it was halted after the subject had given the maximum 450-volt shock three times in succession. Before the experiment was conducted Milgram polled fellow psychologists as to what the results would be. They unanimously believed that only a sadistic few (0.1%) would be prepared to give the maximum voltage. In Milgram's first set of experiments, 67.5 percent (27 out of 40) of experimental participants administered the experiment's final 450-volt shock, though many were quite uncomfortable in doing so; everyone paused at some point and questioned the experiment, some even saying they would return the check for the money they were paid. No participant steadfastly refused to give further shocks before the 300-volt level [underlined emphases are added: a 100% basic failure rate]. Variants of the experiment were later performed by Milgram himself and other psychologists around the world with similar results. Apart from confirming the original results the variations have tested variables in the experimental setup. The percentage of participants who are prepared to inflict fatal voltages remains remarkably constant, between 61% and 66%, regardless of time or location."

[4] Clear and Present Test

This willingness may need to become approximately 0% before humanity can be holistically decent. If it cannot, then the species may be reasonably not augmented in a transhumanist dystopia but shut down as incompatible with any harmonious society.

Tests of this willingness include whether there is consensus to shut down — and execute for treason any who endeavor to destroy or obfuscate their records — the agencies and contractors that failed Milgram tests daily and nightly, massively and systemically, by electrocuting (perpetrating, supervising, authorizing, running surveillance knowingly enabling, or knowingly protecting anyone so engaged in enabling electrocution of) any targeted individual with directed energy weapons including in their homes, worldwide.

They not only failed basic Milgram tests of decency; they flagrantly violated constitutional law (starting with 4th Amendment right to be secure in one's person against unreasonable searches required to localize body parts for assault, before adjudication of the illegality of directed energy attack). Violation of 18 USC § 241–242 supersedes any executive order or legislation to the contrary since Marbury v. Madison in 1803.

These terrorism perpetrators or abettors include the NSA, CIA, FBI, DHS fusion centers and leading military contractors. Their blatant sins punishable by death under federal law span decades, personnel by the thousands. Each entity may reasonably exist in no decent society, ever.

As US obliteration is partly what fascist globalists seek, this may run concurrently with inauguration of agencies authorized to hunt every perpetrator of any false flag operation, false pandemic, trauma-based programming, intentional supply chain constriction or manipulated market collapse, subliminal assault, any other frequency assault, child trafficking, sex trafficking or targeted individual torture operation — managed by long-targeted individuals (not planted TIs from Colorado or Virginia, and not me preferably).

Extraordinary power of the US agencies may then transfer from terrorism perpetrators to cleaning up high crimes. All NSA, CIA, NGA, NRO and DIA assets not shut down may be promptly transferred to this purpose. US power then could be other than a Naziesque scourge domestically and upon the world.

[5] Teaching Children by Asch, Milgram and Arrigo Trials

To change human leadership from centuries of sociopathy to harmonious in one generation is potentially simple, hinging on solving three tests.

In Asch tests, an adult student was asked which of 3 lines (like | | |) matched one (l) with a fairly obvious answer. Unknown to the student, 3 actors replied first with the same wrong answer. Students then gave the same wrong answer.

It reflected assessing reality based on social norms rather than independently easy thought. When people fail to think independently, imagine how easy it is to build a Nazi army: start with 3 Nazis, bring in each recruit one at a time, then let 3 Nazis answer each question and execute orders in front of the recruit. Bingo: Nazi army (e.g., CIA predominantly, always).

Failure to think independently in Asch tests mirrors failure to act independently in Milgram tests (if a species is not sociopathic generally — if it is, this is wasted time generally). Maybe children can be taught that failing an Asch or Milgram test is failure and — when causing pain — something to feel terrible about. Varying Asch- and Milgram-type trials could become hallmarks of about all school grade levels.

The third hallmark can be Dr. Sue Arrigo's way of teaching children to protect each other against divide and conquer attempts. This too can be by varying trials in about every grade.

What I call Asch, Milgram and Arrigo tests are to, respectively: think independently, act independently with empathy, and protect each other in repelling orchestrated divisiveness. When students pass these 3 tests consistently, a species may be transformed, durably decent from the students' generation onward, compatible with harmonious society at first and last.

If these tests are failed persistently, however, as in targeted individual torture operations in every major country now, where thousands of humans and vrill (led by NSA, CIA, US Air Force and private contractor terrorists in the US) literally electrocute targeted individuals with directed energy weaponry: the species may be reasonably obliterated. (While I write this, my foot has been electrocuted over 30 minutes without interruption, as others run a noise campaign to deter this interjection; every one of them is subject to the death penalty under law — starting with 18 USC § 241–242 — for participating in operations that caused death in my family. Customarily their operations start with violating 4th Amendment rights to be secure in one's person against unreasonable searches, enabling the electromagnetic torture in targeted individuals' residences as standard federal operating procedure, the US having been run as a Fourth Reich, a Nazi regime since handing leadership of bioweapons and other covert operations to Hitler's Nazis from Project Paperclip in the 1940s onward.)

Follow-on educational modules could tackle students' susceptibility to blackmail, corruption and anti-competitive collusion, possibly with the aim of feeling terrible once a class knows their undesirable decisions, structured with opportunities for redemption.

Among scholastic priorities, instituting and solving for consistent passage of Asch, Milgram and Arrigo trials is, I suggest, a matter of life or death now, devolution into mass dystopia and tyranny more consequential than about anything else taught.

You can start it.

PART 2: PRIVATE PROPERTY IN HARMONIOUS SOCIETY

“The theory of the communists may be summed up in the single sentence:
abolition of private property.” — Karl Marx

In human history, private property is problematic beyond economic theory, reflecting, at some point, theft, murder or both. Yet it is also desirable. This is readily apparent in travel. In Fiji, for example, public beaches were filled with litter while privately owned beaches were pristine. That would be otherwise in a universally conscientious species.

Even were the species conscientious universally, private property would be instrumental to individuals seeking more efficient or valued use of resources for profit amid others upping their game so to speak, in a competitive and not generally corrupt economy. Profit, after all, then derives from efficiently supplying what others want in massively distributed indirectly reciprocal altruism from a biological point of view.

Indirectly reciprocal altruism is when Larry supplies Curly, Curly supplies Mo, and Mo supplies Larry. Money exchanging hands, like scrap paper keeping tabs, is beside the biological function of supplying resources back and forth with comparative advantage. Money optimizes that advantage in fair competition as whoever supplies each good most desirably, or for least scrap paper representing biological effort in return, attracts it. My grade school never communicated this societal foundation explainable in a paragraph.

Private property, then, appears unjust in historical perspective yet highly desirable.

What would a harmonious species do with that assessment? Would it embrace communism for the masses wherein “you will own nothing” as the World Economic Forum suggests?

Of course not.

What it might do is reasonably maximize private property in competitive sectors (and regulate monopolies, including biosystems, for benevolent stewardship with modest returns on capital) with laws inhibiting corruption, collusion and monopoly while endeavoring to ensure everyone readily attainable opportunity for health as a preliminary matter, and opportunity to flourish. Then it may attain a harmonious society notwithstanding unjust foundations.

Physical human health may require potable water, food, clean air, a suitable climate, shelter enabling unimpeded sleep at least, security including in everyone’s person (absence of assault, including by directed energy or frequency) and benevolent medical assistance on occasion.

Mental health requires zero compulsory drugging (including zero fluoride damaging intellects beyond reasonable doubt), liberty in thought (without non-consensual brain-computer interface or cognitive interference as with remote neural monitoring), absence of coercion, and perhaps genuine social relations (basically opposite of the covert world).

Opportunity to flourish may require world-class educational resources at hand, meritocracy in organizations with a durable competitive advantage (in employers not readily displaced), minimal barriers to entrepreneurship in capitalist economies, structural inhibition of corruption, and generally unfettered ability to travel and communicate.

With private ownership writ large, is physical health, mental health and opportunity to flourish feasible for everyone? Not only do I think it is; I think it's nearly easy.

The economic structure enabling it appears readily practicable as outlined years ago.[1]

Earthly resources are not problematic either. Some 37 billion acres of land accommodate many more than 10 billion people even before aerial abodes. Food is ample, water can be desalinated more efficiently, and energy can be abundant once villains stop killing innovators. In nations reliant on oil or gas revenue, the outlined economic structure can ease alternative energy too.

It is the will to eradicate coercion and corruption throughout halls of power, and the entities and individuals who violate security in anyone's person, that remains the foremost impediment to harmonious society.[2] That includes the will to obliterate — thoroughly obliterate — the public agencies, private contractors and fascist forums colluding to violate rights enshrined in constitutional law.

In the United States that starts with NSA, CIA, Masonry and Illuminuts as treasonous terrorist organizations. Their treason includes poisoning the populace in air, water and medicine as per whistleblowers from US Air Force and Illuminuts. Their terrorism includes torture operations against innocent targeted individuals, often “uncorruptibles,” in slow kill operations until one side is incapacitated, as revealed by whistleblowers and personal experience.

In any harmonious society, such organizations must be acknowledged as constitution violating terrorist organizations, guilty of crimes against humanity and obliterated accordingly.

When they conspire to eliminate anyone delivering this message, having sworn oaths to protect each other's unconstitutional activity: their every member is punishable by death under federal law — 18 USC § 241–242 notwithstanding any executive order or legislation to the contrary. (As set forth in Marbury v. Madison, in 1803 for modest repetition: law repugnant to the Constitution is void instantly, always.) In the event Jesuits are found to have joined in their conspiracy, violating constitutional right to life or protecting the violators, every leading Jesuit would become subject to execution thereunder as well, readily in event of my all-cause death.

To minimize terrorists' remnants perpetrating unconstitutional operations under corporate umbrellas, any personnel who destroy or obfuscate any treasonous terrorist organization's records, outside a safe harbor exemption, may be legally executed for treason or conspiracy against constitutional rights (18 USC § 241 after having violated 18 USC § 242), while their remaining personnel are surveilled as by hawks.[3] Again without limitation, the blatantly treasonous terrorist organizations include the NSA, CIA, FBI, DHS fusion centers, their leading contractors, and US Air Force elements facilitating satellite-based directed energy assault or poisoning of the US populace with carcinogenic chromium and toxic barium etc. primarily out of Colorado and offshore bases (in operations allegedly titled among Indigo Skyfold, Cloverleaf etc., always with ridiculous cover stories for flights at night).

The overriding problem of the US and humanity is neither private property nor population, nor resources or any environmental factor. It is terrorists in all leading instrumentalities of power violating constitutional rights, blatantly incompatible with any harmonious society.

Notes:

- [1] It is outlined in my Full Employment Opportunity series from Vidya (triplenine.org) with a 2019 introduction. (This was while I was under targeted individual torture after decades of obvious surveillance, soon before learning the pain, poisoning and sleep deprivation were not only intentional but standard operating procedure in US-sponsored operations.)
- [2] The next impediment is individual willingness to violate security of persons — failing Milgram tests, causing pain by mere encouragement of authority, a matter of educational structure optimistically (as in Part 1 above).
- [3] The safe harbor exemption may include destruction of illegal surveillance records with the express permission of those surveilled provided that details of the times, locations, types of surveillance and all responsible for it are maintained without obfuscation.

Those enabling records destruction otherwise at covert agencies, contractors or sponsors (including within Ur Lodges) may be, with due legal process, executed generally under 18 US Code § 241 or Art. 3 § 3: conspiracy against rights (resulting in death) or treason, fitting numerical demarcation for any mason executed thereunder.

Part 3: Infinity B

In case the above-sketched foundations of harmonious society are anathema to you, it may be wise to read no further. Alternatively, you may instantly see that they are incompatible with alleged “Committee of 300” views in which actions of an elite cannot be universalized, and societal cohesion is premised on war, fear or coercion rather than principles consistent with universal autonomy.

Is there a viable alternative to the “Syndrome of Control” as Lindsey Williams put it last century? I think so. Let’s call it Infinity B.

This requires some explication, yet we can see in the following tables concisely:

1. Committee of 300 View vs. Infinity B
2. Masonic Bumper Stickers vs. Infinity B
3. Iron Mountain Warmongers vs. Infinity B

1. COMMITTEE OF 300 VIEW VS. INFINITY B

Dr. John Coleman set forth the alleged Committee of 300 view along the following lines.

	Committee of 300 View	Infinity B
Population:	Mass depopulation is required.	About 37 billion acres of land does not require depopulation.
Fascism:	Fascism for the few: wealth is to be owned by a few hundred families in a new world order of feudalism, of serfdom and enslavement.	That's among the most ridiculous ideas ever (borne of Illuminati and 33 rd + degree Masonic Ur Lodges recruiting arrogant buffoons).
Communism:	Communism for the masses: "you'll own nothing, and you'll be happy."	Private property is encouraged, instrumental to profit-motivated efficiency and innovation with comparative advantage.
Drugging:	Drugging is compulsory. Like fluoride in water, drugging is partly how you'll be subservient and "happy."	In healthcare, nothing is compulsory; universal healthcare is made efficient by a few simple rules.
Income:	Universal basic income starts in a financial "reset" with biometrically-tracked labor and required implants.	Full employment opportunity enables basic income in capitalist trade with autonomous free choice all-around.
Shelter:	Some homelessness is required.	Homelessness is not required; in the US, with 5+ million second homes and ~0.5 million homeless, it is a sin.
Cloning:	Before you know what "selling your soul" means, your cloned body may be used for sexual gratification and torture, while you experience it.	Hell no.
Torture:	Whistleblowers are tortured.	Never. As a public employee or contractor having sworn an oath to defend the Constitution, failure to report its violation is criminal.
DEW:	Directed energy weapon (DEW) infrastructure keeps targeted individuals in check.	DEW infrastructure (including by USAF and LM) is destroyed. Using DEW for aggression is a felony.
Frequencies:	Frequency weapons are prized.	Frequency assault is a felony.
Subliminal messaging:	Subliminal messaging (~20,000 Hz) is deployed en masse and in targeted individual operations, commonly mistaken for tinnitus.	Subliminal messaging is a felony outside of brief operations within a narrow safe harbor in accompanying executive orders, with due process.

RNM, BCI:	Non-consensual remote neural monitoring (RNM) by brain-computer interface (BCI) is standard operating procedure of covert agencies and contractors worldwide.	Non-consensual RNM/BCI is tantamount to mental rape, a felony outside of brief interrogations with a warrant and due process, disclosed to all legislators after a brief time.
Aerial spray:	Aerial spray of trace barium, other metals and biological weapons are deployed routinely, partly to ease DEW/frequency assault.	Aerial spray of chemical/biological elements is a felony. Large, levitating magnetic disks are sought to cleanse the land of toxic contaminants.
Metallic nanotechnology	Metallic nanotechnology, sometimes called “morgellons,” is embedded in humans for frequency-based control or RNM, sometimes with graphene (hydr)oxide, deadly when agitated.	Michael Chapala’s cylindrical nanotech-deactivation solution is made available to all. Solutions are expedited to encapsulate and expel razor-like graphene (hydr)oxide.
Policing:	In policing, including about 18,000 US police offices with access to military weapons and myriad protocols, anything goes.	Everyone has the right to be arrested and held in custody, or detained with due process, non-violently. Violators, such as those who punch protesters, are promptly fired and prosecuted.
Wireless:	In the wireless field, anything goes.	Wireless technologies must undergo long-term health-effects testing by opt-in participation, without any conflict of interest, before being authorized by a thousands-strong medical board in direct democracy. Plausibly teratogenetic frequency use is outlawed, cannot be authorized.
Agencies including NSA and CIA:	Covert agencies lead the illicit drug trade, child and sex trafficking, wars of aggression, false flag operations, trauma-based human programming and targeted individual torture ops.	Covert agencies and private societies complicit in any of these activities are designated terrorist organizations and obliterated. Conspiring against rights is a felony upheld without exception.

2. MASONIC BUMPER STICKERS VS. INFINITY B

Foundation: Beyond King Solomon's temple, masons' trademark checkerboard floor suggests a natural balance of forces, good and evil.	Implication: acting with villainy necessitates offsetting benevolence. Is this demonstrated in the history of war? Of course not. It's an excuse to be evil, while Hegelian dialectics are responses to insidious activity. Instead of checkerboard nonsense: (6) Bonitas ab bonitate: Goodness flows from goodness. (7) Malevolentia de malevolentia: Malevolence flows from malevolence. (8) Cultura institutionis persistit per generationes: The culture of an institution persists through the generations — or, as one may prefer — Cultura institutionis persistit de generatione in generationem: The culture of an institution persists from generation to generation.* (9) Institutiones malevoli annihilare cito: Annihilate malevolent institutions promptly.

* Elevating Hitler's spy chief in the CIA, importing Nazis in Project Paperclip to assault the populace as with mycotoxins from Ft. Detrick, orchestrating wars for profit, and perpetuating Masonry-Illuminati depravity based on coercion is a trite explanation for dystopia in progress: toxic cultures persist. Like pruning a tree filled with tangled poisoned branches, toxic agencies must be excised if a precious few healthy branches will bear fruit for forthcoming generations.

3. IRON MOUNTAIN WARMONGER VS. INFINITY B

“As I would put my personal repute behind the authenticity of this document, so would I testify to the validity of its conclusions. My reservation relates only to the wisdom of releasing it”

So one wrote of the 1967 Report from Iron Mountain, by a pen name believed to be economist John Kenneth Galbraith. While the Report may be considered an apologia for the so-called military-industrial complex, it appears to have guided national powers.

Historically incompatible with peace:	“Ethologists have often observed that the organized slaughter of members of their own species is virtually unknown among other animals. Man’s special propensity to kill his own kind (shared to a limited degree with rats) may be attributed to his inability to adapt anachronistic patterns of survival (like primitive hunting) to his development of ‘civilizations’”	Attaining opportunity for all, holistically, from basic needs to social relations to progress within aspirations, may purge this propensity. (If it does not, the species may be shut down as among discordant animals.)
Fetish with enemies:	“However unlikely some of the possible alternate enemies we have mentioned may seem, we must emphasize that one must be found, of credible quality and magnitude, if a transition to peace is ever to come about without social disintegration. It is more probable, in our judgment, that such a threat will have to be invented”	The threat globalists elevated: global warming and weather anomalies maybe attributable to treasonous spraying of toxic metals. Inventing an enemy merits condemnation. Once purged of sadistic sociopaths, societies require no enemy.
Sophisticated slavery:	“It is entirely possible that the development of a sophisticated form of slavery may be an absolute prerequisite for social control”	It may be indeed, if wealth is concentrated in a few hundred families, a disequilibrium.
Glorifying war:	War “has provided the machinery through which the motivational forces governing human behavior have been translated into binding social allegiance. It has thus ensured the degree of social cohesion necessary to the viability of nations.”	Tell that to Vietnam veterans. It is not only nonsense for nations at war; among counterfactuals, did Japan, when pacified after WWII, remain a viable nation?
Economic stabilizer:	The authors recommend studying “the need for war as an economic stabilizer”.	It is, precisely, zero. (See “Full Employment Opportunity.”)
